(U) Los Angeles – Cybercriminals Behind LAUSD Ransomware Attack Release Hacked Data

(U) Cybercriminals who targeted the Los Angeles Unified School District (LAUSD), the second largest in the nation, with a ransomware attack have released some of the hacked data online. The supposed leak came as federal officials warn that ransomware attacks on US schools may increase as children return to school and cybercriminals see more extortion opportunities. LAUSD said in an earlier statement that it's working with law enforcement to determine what information was impacted and to whom it belongs.

(U) Indonesia – At Least 125 Dead in Riots at Soccer Match

(U) Malang – At least 125 people died after a soccer match in Indonesia, where police fired tear gas into crowds of rioting fans, causing a stampede. Authorities revised the death toll after previously counting some fatalities twice. Local media reported about 180 others were injured. Videos and photos from the stadium appeared to show fans rioting in the stands and rushing the pitch. Other images showed police officers in riot gear on the field, with smoke from what appeared to be tear gas billowing from the stands. The event ranks among the deadliest soccer riots in history. The two previous deadliest riots that involved tear gas use occurred in Peru in 1964, when 318 people were killed, and in Ghana in 2001, when 126 people were killed.

(U) Somalia – Al-Shabaab Fighters Kill Crew Drilling Well

(U) Bosaso – Militants from al-Shabaab killed 12 people drilling a well in drought-ravaged southern Somalia. Conflict between the al-Qa'ida-linked al-Shabaab and the central government has killed thousands of people since 2006. Somali security forces say they have made gains on the battlefield in recent weeks while fighting alongside local self-defense groups, but al-Shabaab has continued to conduct deadly raids. The latest attack happened in the southern Gedo region when the militants attacked the crew at its work site, burning their bodies and drilling equipment. The attacks, and the group's demands for tax payments despite the drought, have pushed some residents to take up arms against al-Shabaab.
